When I record a channel to the Record Panel everything works fine.

Now if I disable the record button of this channel and enable the record button on a different channel and record that (after the first one), the waveform display of the channel I recorded before gets discarded, but once I hit play I can still hear the sound of the wav recorded before.

Is this normal behaviour? Is there a way to multitrack to the recorder, synching the "start rec" button to a daw somehow or should recorder only be used if you record every track live at the same time.

thanks
