I've pretty much got the hang of configuring the mixer as I need it for whatever task I'm doing, so this isn't a big issue. However, years ago when I bought a ULN2, the MIO Console mixer had a bunch of different templates for different applications or situations. They were a great starting point, and I found them quite useful, as well as giving my ideas. Is there any plan to incorporate this into the current MIO Console versions? Or a resource for different configs? It's always helpful to get ideas or see how others set things up.

Just a thought.

I agree. Templates for 3d would be very helpful.

thanks
